Prevention of Sexual Harassment at Workplace: Lessons from Case Laws
1. Introduction

Long bygone are the days when men used to be the sole bread-winners of a family. Globalization has brought a radical change in the status of women worldwide. However, with the larger influx of women in the mainstream workforce of India, sexual harassment at workplace has assumed greater dimensions.

Workplace sexual harassment is a form of gender discrimination which violates a woman’s fundamental right to equality and right to life, guaranteed under Articles 14, 15 and 21 of the Constitution of India (“Constitution”). Workplace sexual harassment not only creates an insecure and hostile working environment for women but also impedes their ability to deliver in today’s competing world. Apart from interfering with their performance at work, it also adversely affects their social and economic growth and puts them through physical and emotional suffering.

India’s first legislation specifically addressing the issue of workplace sexual harassment; the Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013 (“POSH Act”) was enacted by the Ministry of Women and Child Development, India in 2013. The Government also subsequently notified the rules under the POSH Act titled the Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Rules, 2013 (“POSH Rules”). The year 2013 also witnessed the promulgation of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 2013 (“Criminal Law Amendment Act”) which has criminalized offences such as sexual harassment, stalking and voyeurism.

The POSH Act has been enacted with the objective of preventing and protecting women against workplace sexual harassment and to ensure effective redressal of complaints of sexual harassment. While the statute aims at providing every woman (irrespective of her age or employment status) a safe, secure and dignified working environment, free from all forms of harassment, proper implementation of the provisions of the statute remains a challenge.

Although the law preventing sexual harassment at workplace has been in force since 2013, there remains lack of clarity on various aspects pertaining to the statute, including what constitutes sexual harassment, obligations of an employer, remedies/safeguards available to the victim, procedure of investigation, etc. Many are also not fully aware of the criminal consequences of sexual harassment. Lewd jokes, inappropriate comments etc. are dismissed as normal, with women being hesitant to initiate actions due to apprehension of being disbelieved or ridiculed; which underpins the need for greater awareness and greater enforcement.

Any tool would be useless if the person operating it is unaware of the way it is to be used. Therefore, the objective of this booklet is to serve as a ready reckoner to all the stakeholders and re-educate them on the law relating to workplace sexual harassment.

This booklet focusses mainly on the POSH Act and other relevant laws in India pertaining to workplace sexual harassment. Further, the objective of this booklet is to create more awareness on the issue and simultaneously equip employers in providing women a safe and secure working environment. The booklet also discusses the importance of ‘prevention’ as the best tool for elimination of this menace in a multi-cultural society as ours.

2. Evolution of The Law on Workplace Sexual Harassment

The elimination of gender-based discrimination has been one of the fundamentals of the Constitutional edifice of India. The principle of gender equality is enshrined in the Constitution, in its Preamble, fundamental rights, fundamental duties and Directive Principles. However, workplace sexual harassment in India, was for the very first time recognized by the Supreme Court of India in its landmark judgment of Vishaka v. State of Rajasthan2 (“Vishaka Judgment”), wherein the Supreme Court framed certain guidelines and issued directions to the Union of India to enact an appropriate law for combating workplace sexual harassment. Nothing less of an irony, the POSH Act and the POSH Rules was enacted 16 years after the Vishaka Judgement.

In the absence of a specific law in India, the Supreme Court, in the Vishaka Judgment, laid down certain guidelines making it mandatory for every employer to provide a mechanism to redress grievances pertaining to workplace sexual harassment (“Vishaka Guidelines”) which were being followed by employers until the enactment of the POSH Act.

I. The Vishaka Judgement

In 1992, Bhanwari Devi, a dalit woman employed with the rural development programme of the Government of Rajasthan, was brutally gang raped on account of her efforts to curb the then prevalent practice of child marriage.3 This incident revealed the hazards that working women were exposed to on a day to day basis and highlighted the urgency for safeguards to be implemented in this regard. Championing the cause of working women in the country, women’s rights activists and lawyers filed a public interest litigation in the Supreme Court of India under the banner of Vishaka.

The Supreme Court of India, for the first time, acknowledged the glaring legislative inadequacy and acknowledged workplace sexual harassment as a human rights violation. In framing the Vishaka Guidelines, the Supreme Court of India placed reliance on the Convention on Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations, in 1979, which India has both signed and ratified. As per the Vishaka Judgment, the Vishaka Guidelines issued under Article 32 of the Constitution, until such time a legislative framework on the subject has been drawn-up and enacted, would have the effect of law and would have to be mandatorily followed by organizations, both in the private and government sector.

As per the Vishaka judgment, ‘Sexual Harassment’ includes such unwelcome sexually determined behavior (whether directly or by implication) as:

a. Physical contact and advances
b. A demand or request for sexual favours;
c. Sexually coloured remarks;
d. Showing pornography;
e. Any other unwelcome physical, verbal or non-verbal conduct of sexual nature.

Where any of these acts are committed in circumstances under which the victim of such conduct has a reasonable apprehension that in relation to the victim’s employment or work (whether she is drawing salary or honorarium or voluntary service, whether in government, public or private enterprise), such conduct can be humiliating and may constitute a health and safety problem, it amounts to sexual harassment in the workplace. It is discriminatory, for instance, when the woman has reasonable grounds to believe that her objection would disadvantage her in connection with her employment or work (including recruiting and promotion), or when it creates a hostile working environment. Adverse consequences might result if the victim does not consent to the conduct in question or raises any objection thereto.’

II. Post Vishaka – Some Other Judgments

A. Apparel Export Promotion Council v. A.K Chopra

The Vishaka judgment initiated a nationwide discourse on workplace sexual harassment and threw out wide open an issue that was swept under the carpet for the longest time. The first case before the Supreme Court after Vishaka in this respect was the case of Apparel Export Promotion Council v. A.K Chopra. In this case, the Supreme Court reiterated the law laid down in the Vishaka Judgment and upheld the dismissal of a superior officer of the Delhi based Apparel Export Promotion Council who was found guilty of sexually harassing a subordinate female employee at the workplace. In this judgment, the Supreme Court enlarged the definition of sexual harassment by ruling that physical contact was not essential for it to amount to an act of sexual harassment. The Supreme Court explained that “sexual harassment is a form of sex discrimination projected through unwelcome sexual advances, request for sexual favours and other verbal or physical conduct with sexual overtones, whether directly or by implication, particularly when submission to or rejection of such conduct by the female employee was capable of being used for affecting the employment of the female employee and unreasonably interfering with her work performance and had the effect of creating an intimidating or hostile work environment for her.”

B. Medha Kotwal Lele & Ors. V. Union of India & Ors.

A letter written by Dr. Medha Kotwal of Aalochana (an NGO) highlighted a number of individual cases of sexual harassment stating that the Vishaka Guidelines were not being effectively implemented. Converting the letter into a writ petition, the Supreme Court took cognizance and undertook monitoring of implementation of the Vishaka Guidelines across the country by directing State Governments to file affidavits emphasizing on the steps taken by them to implement the Vishaka Guidelines. In its judgment, the Supreme Court observed that “the implementation of the Vishaka Guidelines has to be not only in form but also in substance and spirit so as to make available safe and secure environment for women at workplace in every aspect and thereby enabling working women to work with dignity, decency and due respect.” Not being satisfied with the implementation of the Vishaka Guidelines, it directed States to put in place sufficient mechanisms to ensure effective implementation of the Vishaka Guidelines. Finally, the Supreme Court asserted that in case of a non-compliance or non-adherence of the Vishaka Guidelines, it would be open to the aggrieved persons to approach the respective High Courts.

3. Key Provisions of the POSH Act

I. Applicability and scope

- Applicable Jurisdiction: The POSH Act extends to the ‘whole of India’.\(^5\)
- Aggrieved Woman: As per the POSH Act, an ‘aggrieved woman’ in relation to a workplace, is a woman of any age, whether employed or not, who alleges to have been subjected to any act of sexual harassment.\(^6\) Given that the definition does not necessitate the woman to be an employee, even a customer/client who may be sexually harassed at a workplace can claim protection under the POSH Act.

The POSH Act further stipulates that a woman shall not be subjected to sexual harassment at her workplace.\(^7\) Accordingly, it may be noted that in order for a woman to claim protection under the POSH Act, the incident of sexual harassment should have taken place at the ‘workplace’.

The POSH Act protects only women and is not a gender-neutral legislation and protects only women. Therefore, the safeguards under the POSH Act are not applicable to ‘men victims’.

5. Section 1 of the POSH Act
6. Section 2(a) of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
7. Section 3 of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
Covered bodies: The POSH Act applies to both the organized and unorganized sectors in India. It inter alia, applies to government bodies, private and public sector organizations, non-governmental organizations, organizations carrying out commercial, vocational, educational, entertainment, industrial, financial activities, hospitals and nursing homes, educational institutes, sports institutions and stadiums used for training individuals and also applies to a dwelling place or a house.

II. What amounts to Sexual Harassment?

The POSH Act defines ‘sexual harassment’ in line with the Supreme Court’s definition of ‘sexual harassment’ in the Vishaka Judgment. As per the POSH Act, ‘sexual harassment’ includes unwelcome sexually tinted behaviour, whether directly or by implication, such as (i) physical contact and advances, (ii) demand or request for sexual favours, (iii) making sexually coloured remarks, (iv) showing pornography, or (v) any other unwelcome physical, verbal or non-verbal conduct of a sexual nature.

The following circumstances, among other circumstances, if they occur or are present in relation to or connected with any act or behaviour of sexual harassment may amount to sexual harassment:

- implied or explicit promise of preferential treatment in employment;
- implied or explicit threat of detrimental treatment in employment;
- implied or explicit threat about present or future employment status;
- interference with work or creating an intimidating or offensive or hostile work environment; or
- humiliating treatment likely to affect the lady employee’s health or safety.

As you would note from above, the definition of ‘sexual harassment’ under the POSH Act is wide enough to cover both direct or implied sexual conduct which may involve physical, verbal or even written conduct. The key distinguishing feature is that the conduct is unwanted and unwelcome by the recipient. It includes quid pro quo sexual harassment, a form of sexual blackmail (which if translated in English, would mean ‘this for that’). In a typical situation of quid pro quo harassment, the respondent being a person in power, pressurizes the woman employee (usually a subordinate) for sexual favours in exchange for advancement in the workplace or threat of adverse employment action. The definition also includes reference to creating an ‘intimidate, offensive or hostile working environment’. An example would be a work environment where an individual is subject to unwelcome comments about her body type resulting in the woman employee feeling embarrassed and unable to work properly.

While some forms of sexual harassment such as sexual assault are inherently offensive and egregious, and may need to occur only once for it to be treated as ‘sexual harassment’, some other forms may not be easily distinguishable. Since there is no fine line test in determining what would amount to a ‘hostile working environment’, the burden will lie on the Internal Committee to decide whether the harassment suffered by a victim is sufficiently severe to have created a hostile working environment or not. Further, determining what constitutes ‘sexual harassment’ depends upon the specific facts and the context in which the conduct has occurre.
In 2010, the High Court of Delhi endorsed the view that sexual harassment is a subjective experience and for that reason held “A complete understanding of the complainant’s view requires... an analysis of the different perspectives of men and women. Conduct that many men consider unobjectionable may offend many women... Men tend to view some forms of sexual harassment as “harmless social interactions to which only overly-sensitive women would object. The characteristically male view depicts sexual harassment as comparatively harmless amusement... Men, who are rarely victims of sexual assault, may view sexual conduct in a vacuum without a full appreciation of the social setting or the underlying threat of violence that a woman may perceive.”

Please refer to Chapter 5 for examples of conduct that amounts to ‘sexual harassment’.

III. Employee

The definition of an ‘employee’ under the POSH Act is fairly wide to cover regular, temporary, ad hoc employees, individuals engaged on a daily wage basis, either directly or through an agent, contract labourers, co-workers, probationers, trainees, and apprentices, with or without the knowledge of the principal employer, whether for remuneration or not, working on a voluntary basis or otherwise, whether the terms of employment are express or implied.

IV. Workplace

While the Vishaka Guidelines were confined to the traditional office set-up, recognizing the fact that sexual harassment may not necessarily be limited to the primary place of employment, the POSH Act has introduced the concept of an ‘extended workplace’. As per the POSH Act, ‘workplace’ includes any place visited by the employee arising out of or during the course of employment, including transportation provided by the employer for the purpose of commuting to and from the place of employment.

In the case of Saurabh Kumar Mallick v. Comptroller & Auditor General of India, the respondent who was facing departmental inquiry for allegedly indulging in sexual harassment of his senior woman officer contended that he could not be accused of sexual harassment at workplace as the alleged misconduct took place not at the workplace but at an official mess where the woman officer was residing. It was also argued that the complainant was even senior to the respondent and therefore no ‘favour’ could be extracted by the respondent from the complainant and thus the alleged act would not constitute ‘sexual harassment’. The Delhi Court while considering this matter held this as ‘clearly misconceived’. The Delhi Court observed that ‘the aim and objective of formulating the Vishaka Guidelines was obvious in order to ensure that sexual harassment of working women is prevented and any person guilty of such an act is dealt with sternly. Keeping in view the objective behind the judgment, a narrow and pedantic approach cannot be taken in defining the term ‘workplace’ by confining the meaning to the commonly understood expression “office”. It is imperative to take into consideration the recent trend which has emerged with the advent of computer and internet technology and advancement of information technology. A person can interact or do business conference with another person while sitting in some other country by way of video-conferencing. It has also become a trend that the office is being run by CEOs from their residence. In a case like this, if such an officer indulges in an act of sexual harassment with an employee, say, his private secretary, it would not be open for him to say that he had not committed the act at ‘workplace’ but at his ‘residence’ and get away with the same. Noting the above, the High Court observed that the following factors would have bearing on determining whether the act has occurred in the ‘workplace’:

13. Section 2(f) of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
14. Section 2(o) of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
15. Decided on May 9, 2008 [Citation not available]
- Proximity from the place of work;
- Control of the management over such a place/residence where the working woman is residing; and
- Such a residence has to be an extension or contiguous part of the working place.

In conclusion, the Delhi High Court held that the official mess where the employee was alleged to have been sexually harassed definitely falls under 'workplace'.

V. Complaints Committee

An important feature of the POSH Act is that it envisages the setting up of a grievance redressal forum.

A. Internal Committee

The POSH Act requires an employer to set up an 'internal committee' ("IC") at each office or branch, of an organization employing 10 or more employees, to hear and redress grievances pertaining to sexual harassment.

B. Constitution of the IC

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Presiding Officer</th>
<th>Woman employed at a senior level at the workplace from amongst the employees.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Members</td>
<td>Not less than 2 members from amongst employees. Preferably committed to the cause of women or who have had experience in social work or have legal knowledge.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>External member</td>
<td>From an NGO or association committed to the cause of women or person familiar with issues relating to sexual harassment.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Not less than half of the IC Members shall be women
The term of the IC Members shall not exceed 3 years
A minimum of 3 Members of the IC including the Presiding Officer are to be present for conducting the inquiry.

16. As per Repealing and Amending Act, 2016, the nomenclature of Internal Complaints Committee was changed to Internal Committee.
17. Section 4 of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
18. A person who has expertise on issues relating to sexual harassment and includes a social worker with at least 5 years of experience in the field of social work towards empowerment of women and in particular in addressing workplace sexual harassment; or someone who is familiar with labour, service, civil or criminal law (as per Rule 4 of the POSH Rules).
SOME PRACTICAL TIPS  IC CONSTITUTION

- As far as possible, the IC should comprise of women members who have been trained on the POSH Act and POSH Rules and their roles and responsibilities;
- It is preferable to have an odd number of members in order for the IC to arrive at a decision based on majority in case of a divided opinion.
- The IC members should be selected based on evaluation of various factors including whether they are accessible, approachable, committed, sensitive and understanding.
- They should be sensitive to issues pertaining to gender-based violence and should have good credibility and technical competency to handle grievance procedures.
- The functioning of the IC should be made autonomous such that there is no scope of allegations of bias or favouritism.
- As far as possible, provide the IC separate space for conducting their meetings and maintaining records of cases of sexual harassment.
- Hold periodic discussions between the IC members and conduct regular trainings.

C. Local Committee

At the district level, the Government is required to set up a ‘local committee’ ("LC") to investigate and redress complaints of sexual harassment from the unorganized sector or from establishments where the IC has not been constituted on account of the establishment having less than 10 employees or if the complaint is against the employer. The LCC has special relevance in cases of sexual harassment of domestic workers or where the complaint is against the employer himself or a third party who is not an employee.

Constitution of the LCC

| Chairperson | An eminent woman in the field of social work and committed to the cause of women. |
| Local Woman | One of the members to be nominated from amongst the women working in block, taluka, tehsil or ward or municipality in the district. |
| NGO members | Two members, out of which, at least one shall be a woman to be nominated from a NGO or an association committed to the cause of women or a person familiar with issues pertaining to sexual harassment |
  - At least one of the members should have a background in law.
  - At least one of the members should be a woman belonging to the Scheduled Castes or Scheduled Tribes.

19. As per Repealing and Amending Act, 2016, the nomenclature of Local Complaints Committee was changed to Local Committee.

20. Section 5 of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
D. Powers of the IC/LCC
The POSH Act stipulates that the IC and LCC shall, while inquiring into a complaint of workplace sexual harassment, have the same powers as vested in a civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 when trying a suit in respect of:

i. summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath;

ii. requiring the discovery and production of documents; and

iii. any other matter which may be prescribed.21

VI. Complaint mechanism
An aggrieved woman who intends to file a complaint is required to submit six copies of the written complaint, along with supporting documents and names and addresses of the witnesses to the IC or LCC, within 3 months from the date of the incident and in case of a series of incidents, within a period of 3 months from the date of the last incident. Prompt reporting of an act of sexual harassment is probably as important as swift action to be taken by the authorities on receiving a complaint. Infact the more prompt the complaint is, the more authentic can it be treated. In instances where sufficient cause is demonstrated by the complainant for the delay in filing the complaint, the IC/LCC may extend the timeline for filing the complaint, for reasons to be recorded in-writing. The law also makes provisions for friends, relatives, co-workers, psychologist & psychiatrists, etc. to file the complaint in situations where the aggrieved woman is unable to make the complaint on account of physical incapacity, mental incapacity or death.22 Given that the POSH Act and the POSH Rules do not prescribe any format in which the complaint needs to be filed, the following tips may be kept in mind:

A WELL DRAFTED COMPLAINT

- The complaint should be addressed to the IC members and not the employer/HR representative.
- The complaint should be concise, i.e. it should be written in simple language which can be understood easily. Complaints that are well written and presented properly have greater credibility.
- Details of exact incident, date and time, witness etc. to be included.
- Circumstances preceding and following the incident to be recorded.
- Whether the complainant asked the respondent to desist from the unwelcome act(s).
- Append as many documents as possible in whatever format i.e. relevant e-mails, screenshots of SMS’s/whatsapp messages, call details, photographs, recordings etc.
- Details of the respondent including name, designation, reporting structure between complainant and respondent if any (whether subordinate, colleague or superior).
- Do not state any fact that is false or incorrect.
- The relief that is sought from the employer.

21. Section 11(3) of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
22. Section 6 of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
VII. Conciliation

Before initiating action on a complaint, the IC on the request of the aggrieved woman, can make efforts to settle the matter between the parties through conciliation by bringing about an amicable settlement. Conciliation is basically an informal method of resolving complaints before the complaint escalates into a fully blown formal inquiry. Thus, after a complaint of sexual harassment has been lodged, the aggrieved woman may request the IC to resolve the matter by conciliating between the parties before commencement of the inquiry proceedings, although monetary settlement should not be made as a basis of conciliation.

Once the settlement has been arrived at, the IC or the LCC (as the case maybe) shall record the settlement arrived at and thereafter provide copies of the settlement to the aggrieved woman as well as the respondent. Once a settlement has been arrived at, the IC shall proceed with an inquiry under the POSH Act.

VIII. Redressal process/Inquiry

Please refer to the flowchart below which provides an overview of the process to be followed by the aggrieved employee to make the complaint and by the IC/LCC to inquire into the complaint.

Timelines

Written complaints (6 copies) along with supporting documents and names and addresses of witnesses have to be filed within 3 months of the date of the incident. Timeline extendable by another 3 months.

Upon receipt of the complaint, 1 copy of the complaint is to be sent to the respondent within 7 days.

Upon receipt of the copy of complaint, the respondent is required to reply to the complaint along with a list of supporting documents, and names and addresses of witnesses within 10 working days.

The Inquiry has to be completed within a total of 90 days from the receipt of the complaint.

The Inquiry report has to be issued within 10 days from the date of completion of inquiry.

The employer is required to act on the recommendations of the IC/LCC within 60 days of receipt of the Inquiry report.

Appeal against the decision of the committee is allowed within 90 days from the date of recommendations.

---

23. Section 10 of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act
IX. Interim Reliefs

At the request of the complainant, the IC or the LCC (as the case may be) may recommend to the employer to provide interim measures such as:

i. transfer of the aggrieved woman or the respondent to any other workplace;

ii. granting leave to the aggrieved woman up to a period of 3 months in addition to her regular statutory/contractual leave entitlement;

iii. restrain the respondent from reporting on the work performance of the aggrieved woman or writing her confidential report, which duties may be transferred to other employees.

X. Punishment and compensation

The POSH Act prescribes the following punishments that may be imposed by an employer on an employee for indulging in an act of sexual harassment:

i. punishment prescribed under the service rules of the organization;

ii. if the organization does not have service rules, disciplinary action including written apology, warning, reprimand, censure, withholding of promotion, withholding of pay rise or increments, terminating the respondent from service, undergoing a counselling session, or carrying out community service; and

iii. deduction of compensation payable to the aggrieved woman from the wages of the respondent.\(^{24}\)

The POSH Act also envisages payment of compensation to the aggrieved woman. The compensation payable shall be determined based on:

i. the mental trauma, pain, suffering and emotional distress caused to the aggrieved employee;

ii. the loss in career opportunity due to the incident of sexual harassment;

iii. medical expenses incurred by the victim for physical/psychiatric treatment;

iv. the income and status of the alleged perpetrator; and

v. feasibility of such payment in lump sum or in installments.\(^{25}\)

In the event that the respondent fails to pay the aforesaid sum, IC may forward the order for recovery of the sum as an arrear of land revenue to the concerned District Officer.

XI. Frivolous complaints

In order to ensure that the protections envisaged under the POSH Act are not misused, provisions for action against “false or malicious” complainants have been included in the statute. As per the POSH Act, if the IC/LCC concludes that the allegation made by the complainant is false or malicious or the complaint has been made knowing it to be untrue or forged or misleading information has been provided during the inquiry, disciplinary action in accordance with the service rules of the organisation can be taken against such complainant.

Where the organisation does not have service rules, the statute provides that disciplinary action such as written apology, warning, reprimand, censure, withholding of promotion, withholding of pay rise or increments, terminating the respondent from service, undergoing a counselling session, or carrying out community service and

\(^{24}\) Section 13 of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act

\(^{25}\) Section 15 of the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act out community service may be taken. The POSH Act further clarifies that the mere inability to substantiate a complaint or provide adequate proof need not mean that the complaint is false or malicious.\(^\text{26}\)

XII. Confidentiality

Recognising the sensitivity attached to matters pertaining to sexual harassment, the POSH Act attaches significant importance to ensuring that the complaint and connected information are kept confidential. The POSH Act specifically stipulates that information pertaining to workplace sexual harassment shall not be subject to the provisions of the Right to Information Act, 2005.

The POSH Act further prohibits dissemination of the contents of the complaint, the identity and addresses of the complainant, respondent, witnesses, any information relating to conciliation and inquiry proceedings, recommendations of the IC/LCC and the action taken to the public, press and media in any manner. That said, the POSH Act allows dissemination of information pertaining to the justice that has been secured to any victim of sexual harassment, without disclosing the name, address, identity or any other particulars which could result in the identification of the complainant or the witnesses.\(^\text{27}\) Disclosure of the justice secured could not only deter other individuals from engaging in acts of sexual harassment, but also instil in the minds of employees and public that the employer is serious about providing a safe work environment and harbours zero tolerance for any form of sexual harassment at the workplace.\(^\text{28}\)

Breach of the obligation to maintain confidentiality by a person entrusted with the duty to handle or deal with the complaint or conduct the inquiry, or make recommendations or take actions under the statute, is punishable in accordance with the provisions of the service rules applicable to the said person or where no such service rules exist, a fine of INR 5,000.\(^\text{29}\)

XIII. Consequences of non-compliance

If an employer fails to constitute an IC or does not comply with the requirements prescribed under the POSH Act, a monetary penalty of up to INR 50,000 (approx. US$ 900) may be imposed. A repetition of the same offence could result in the punishment being doubled and/or de-registration of the entity or revocation of any statutory business licenses. It is however unclear as to which business licenses are being referred to in this case.\(^\text{30}\) It is also pertinent to note that all offences under POSH Act are non-cognizable.\(^\text{31}\)

4. Employer’s Duties and Obligations

“Prevention is better than Cure”

In addition to requiring an employer to set up an IC and ensure redressal of grievances of workplace harassment in a time bound manner, the POSH Act casts certain other obligations upon an employer which includes:

a. Promoting a gender sensitive workplace and removing the underlying factors that contribute towards creating a hostile working environment against women;

b. provide a safe working environment;

c. formulate and widely disseminate an internal policy or charter or resolution or declaration for prohibition, prevention and redressal of sexual harassment at the workplace;

d. display conspicuously at the workplace, the penal consequences of indulging in acts that may constitute sexual harassment and the composition of the IC;

The Anti-Sexual Harassment Policy – Some tips to follow

- Clearly define ‘sexual harassment’ and outline the scope and applicability (gender neutral or not);
- Mention how the employer practices zero-tolerance towards sexual harassment at workplace;
- Extended concept of workplace;
- Complaint mechanism;
- Regularly distribute and promote the policy at all levels of the organization;
- Ensure that the policy is easily accessible;
- Provide a copy of the policy to new joinees as part of their induction;
- Review the policy periodically & update information regarding IC members etc. on a timely basis.
5. Examples of Conduct Amounting to Sexual Harassment

Whether an act or conduct would amount to ‘sexual harassment’ is dependent on the specifics of the act and the circumstances. The following is an indicative list of conduct that could be considered as sexual harassment:

21. Explicitly or implicitly suggesting sexual favours in return for hiring, compensation, promotion, retention decision, relocation, or allocation of job/responsibility/work;
22. Any act or conduct by a person in authority and belonging to one sex which denies or would deny equal opportunity in pursuit of career development or otherwise making the environment at the work place hostile or intimidating to a person belonging to the other sex, only on the ground of such individual providing or refusing sexual favours;
23. Physical confinement against one’s will and any other act likely to violate one’s privacy.
6. Other Laws Pertaining to Workplace Sexual Harassment

I. Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act, 1946

The Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act, 1946 ("Standing Orders Act") is a central enactment which, inter alia, requires an employer to define and publish uniform conditions of employment in the form of standing orders. As per the statute, the standing orders should contain terms of employment including, hours of work, wage rates, shift working, attendance and late coming, provision for leaves and holidays and termination or suspension/dismissal of employees.

At the first instance, the Standing Orders Act is applicable to "industrial establishments employing a minimum of 100 workmen."

The Standing Orders Act prescribes Model Standing Orders, serving as guidelines for employers and in the event that an employer has not framed and certified its own standing orders, the provisions of the Model Standing Orders shall be applicable.

II. Indian Penal Code, 1860

Conduct that may be construed as sexual harassment not only violates the Prevention of Workplace Sexual Harassment Act, but also could constitute an offence under the IPC. Listed out below are the key offenses under the IPC that could be triggered in a case of sexual harassment.

7. Frequently Asked Questions

1. Can both men and women be victims of workplace sexual harassment?

Yes, both men and women can be victims of sexual harassment. However, the safeguards/protection under the POSH Act is available only to women.

2. Can verbal conduct amount to sexual harassment?

Verbal harassment that is sexually coloured can constitute sexual harassment. Words can be just as offensive as physical acts and contact. Sexually coloured jokes, comments and stories can be sexually harassing and can create a hostile work environment.

3. Is the employer responsible if an employee is sexually harassed at a company-sponsored event (a) during working hours and (b) outside of working hours?

The POSH Act introduces the concept of ‘extended workplace’ covering under its ambit any place visited by the employee arising out of or during the course of employment including transportation provided by the employer for undertaking such journey. Hence, any form of sexual harassment at a company-sponsored event whether within or outside of the normal working hours would also fall under the scope of the POSH Act.

4. When is an establishment required to constitute an IC?

Every establishment having 10 or more employees is required to constitute an IC.

5. Is an IC required to be constituted at every branch/office?

Yes, an IC is required to be set up at every branch/office of the company wherein at least 10 employees are employed.

6. Can the complaint be filed with and inquired by the HR manager of the company?

No, the complaint needs to be filed with and inquired into by the IC.

7. Is there a time limit for filing a complaint of sexual harassment?

A complaint of sexual harassment needs to be filed within 3 months of the date of incident and in case of a series of incidents, within a period of 3 months from the date of the last incident. However, the IC or the LCC, as the case may be, may extend the time limit, however, not exceeding 3 months, for reasons to be recorded in writing if it is satisfied that the circumstances were such that the victim was unable to file a complaint within the said period.

8. Can a complaint of sexual harassment be conciliated/mediated between the parties?

Yes (at the request of the aggrieved woman), but no monetary settlement shall be allowed.
Preamble

An Act to provide protection against sexual harassment of women at workplace and for the prevention and redressal of complaints of sexual harassment and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

Whereas, sexual harassment results in violation of the fundamental rights of a woman to equality under Articles 14 and 15 of the Constitution of India and her right to life and to live with dignity under Article 21 of the Constitution and right to practice any profession or to carry on any occupation, trade or business which includes a right to a safe environment free from sexual harassment;

And whereas, the protection against sexual harassment and the right to work with dignity are universally recognized human rights by international conventions and instruments such as Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women, which has been ratified on the 25th June, 1993 by the Government of India;

And whereas, it is expedient to make provisions for giving effect to the said Convention for protection of women against sexual harassment at workplace.

Be it enacted by Parliament in the Sixty-fourth Year of the Republic of India, as follows.

7. Manner of inquiry into complaint.

   a. Subject to the provisions of Section 11, at the time of filing the complaint, the complainant shall submit to the Complaints Committee, six copies of the complaint along with supporting documents and the names and addresses of the witnesses.

   b. On receipt of the complaint, the Complaints Committee shall send one of the copies received from the aggrieved woman under sub-rule (a) to the respondent within a period of seven working days.

   c. The respondent shall file his reply to the complaint along with his list of documents, and names and addresses of witnesses, within a period not exceeding ten working days from the date of receipt of the documents specified under sub-rule (1).
d. The Complaints Committee shall make inquiry into the complaint in accordance with the principles of natural justice.

e. The Complaints Committee shall have the right to terminate the inquiry proceedings or to give an ex-parte decision on the complaint, if the complainant or respondent fails, without sufficient cause, to present herself or himself for three consecutive hearings convened by the Chairperson or Presiding Officer, as the case may be:

f. Provided that such termination or ex-parte order may not be passed without giving a notice in writing, fifteen days in advance, to the party concerned.

g. The parties shall not be allowed to bring in any legal practitioner to represent them in their case at any stage of the proceedings before the Complaints Committee.

h. In conducting the inquiry, a minimum of three Members of the Complaints Committee including the Presiding Officer or the Chairperson, as the case may be, shall be present.

8. Other relief to complainant during pendency of inquiry.- The Complaints Committee at the written request of the aggrieved woman may recommend to the employer to-

a. restrain the respondent from reporting on the work performance of the aggrieved woman or writing her confidential report, and assign the same to another officer;

b. restrain the respondent in case of an educational institution from supervising any academic activity of the aggrieved woman.

9. Manner of taking action for sexual harassment.–Except in cases where service rules exist, where the Complaints Committee arrives at the conclusion that the allegation against the respondent has been proved, it shall recommend to the employer or the District Officer, as the case may be, to take any action including a written apology, warning, reprimand or censure, withholding of promotion, withholding of pay rise or increments, terminating the respondent from service or undergoing a counselling session or carrying out community service.

10. Action for false or malicious complaint or false evidence.—Except in cases where service rules exist, where the Complaints Committee arrives at the conclusion that the allegation against the respondent is malicious or the aggrieved woman or any other person making the complaint has made the complaint knowing it to be false or the aggrieved woman or any other person making the complaint has produced any forged or misleading document, it may recommend to the employer or District Officer, as the case may be, to take action in accordance with the provisions of Rule 9.

11. Appeal.– Subject to the provisions of Section 18, any person aggrieved from the recommendations made under sub-section (2) of Section 13 or under clauses (i) or clause (ii) of sub-section (3) of Section 13 or sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of Section 14 or Section 17 or non-implementation of such recommendations may prefer an appeal to the appellate authority notified under clause (a) of Section 2 of the Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act, 1946 (20 of 1946).

12. Penalty for contravention of provisions of Section 16.—Subject to the provisions of Section 17, if any person contravenes the provisions of Section 16, the employer shall recover a sum of five thousand rupees as penalty from such person.

13. Manner to organize workshops, etc.– Subject to the provisions of Section 19, every employer shall.
13. Activities for prevention of sexual harassment:

(a) formulate and widely disseminate an internal policy or charter or resolution or declaration for prohibition, prevention and redressal of sexual harassment at the workplace intended to promote gender sensitive safe spaces and remove underlying factors that contribute towards a hostile work environment against women;

(b) carry out orientation programmes and seminars for the Members of the Internal Committee;

(c) carry out employees awareness programmes and create forum for dialogues which may involve Panchayati Raj Institutions, Gram Sabha, women’s groups, mothers’ committee, adolescent groups, urban local bodies and any other body as may be considered necessary;

Hotline: Court decides not to interfere with decision of Internal Complaints Committee set up by employer

I. Facts

The employee (petitioner) was employed with an Indian government owned development bank. She had filed a complaint of sexual harassment against the General Manager, who was her immediate superior officer (“Supervisor”). However, no action was taken by the employer. Thereafter, the employee filed another complaint seeking establishment of an ICC as was necessary to be set up, as per the law laid down by the Supreme Court of India in the case of Vishakha v. State of Rajasthan.34

As for the incidents that took place before February/March 2012, the limitation period of three months prescribed under the Sexual Harassment Act had expired and thus, were not taken into account by the ICC. However, the Human Resource department could take separate action based on those instances, which would be beyond the scope of the Sexual Harassment Act. Based on the ICC’s report, the Disciplinary Authority passed an order, by which the Supervisor was (a) demoted to a lower rank by two ranks; (b) transferred to another city and (c) received a pay cut as per his lower rank (“Order”).

II. Contentions

The employee however challenged the validity of the Order before the Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India (“Constitution”). The employee contended that a higher punishment should be imposed on the Supervisor. Also, the employee challenged the validity of the observations of the ICC as it had not adequately taken on record all evidences. Also, the Supervisor had not been

33. Writ Petition 796 of 2015

declared guilty under the Sexual Harassment Act and a mere condemnatory statement was made by the Disciplinary Authority against the Supervisor. As for expiration of the period of limitation, the employee argued that because the Supervisor was her immediate superior, she was under reasonable apprehension to file a complaint as it would endanger her career.

The Supervisor argued that the penalty imposed was harsh enough as a result of which the Supervisor had suffered psychologically and financially. It was contended that the Supervisor had to stay apart from his family, as he had to shift to another city. It was further contended that it was not open to the Court to re-appreciate the evidence once the Disciplinary Committee had considered it and ruled over it. Lastly, it was contended that the Court cannot look into the proportionality of the Order passed by a Disciplinary Committee.

III. Judgment

The Court referred to its decision in Om Kumar v Union of India35 and reaffirmed the principles of judicial restraint to be exercised by courts under Article 226 of the Constitution. The Court held that unless the Order is shockingly disproportionate to the act of the delinquent employee, it will be circumspect in interfering with the Order. Reiterating the decision of Om Kumar, the Court held that interference is warranted only when there is non-compliance of the principles of administrative law, Wednesbury Principles and doctrine of proportionality by the Disciplinary Authority.

As for compliance with the Wednesbury Principles, interference was held to be not permissible unless any of the following conditions were satisfied: (a) the Order was contrary to law, (b) relevant factors were not considered, (c) irrelevant factors were considered and (d) no reasonable person would have taken such a decision. Under the principle of proportionality, the Court stated that it would have to be seen whether the legislature and administrative authority maintained a proper balance between the adverse effects which the legislation or order may have on the rights, liberties or interests of persons, keeping in mind the purpose which they were intended to serve. The Court also observed that the inquiry by the Disciplinary Authority was conducted dispassionately and all evidences were appropriately considered and ruled upon in a fair and proper manner. Therefore, the Court was not entitled to give a second opinion merely because it had the discretion to do so.

However, the Court felt that there was a need to have an effective mechanism in place at workplaces for addressing issues of sexual harassment of women. The Court also observed that male employees must be made aware of concerns of female employees by undertaking an exercise of gender sensitization as more and more women were becoming part of the national workforce and contributing to the national economy. The Court also remarked as to how many companies, corporations and government undertakings have not complied with the Sexual Harassment Act and do not have an adequate mechanism to deal with issues of sexual harassment.

IV. Analysis

This judgment reaffirms the importance and powers of the ICC that is required to be formed under the Sexual Harassment Act. Given the sensitivities surrounding sexual harassment allegations, it is important that the ICC is trained to deal with such cases in a fair, proper and dispassionate manner and based on the principles of natural justice. It is also necessary for the ICC to ensure that it completes the investigation and issues its order within the time frame set under the law.

35. (2001) 2 SCC 386
The judgment also clarifies the already enshrined principles of judicial restraint by the courts. The interference of the courts should be limited to ensuring that there are no procedural irregularities or violations of principles of natural justice. Once the ICC has adequately and appropriately addressed a complaint of sexual harassment, it is not open to the courts to look into the merits of the matter.
India’s new sexual harassment law is now more than three years old. And that should serve as a reminder to start the process to change the members of your Internal Complaints Committee (ICC).

India’s Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act 2013 (Sexual Harassment Act) was notified in December 2013. The law has been a catalyst in creating greater awareness of the issue of sexual harassment at the workplace. It has also given huge confidence to female employees to report any adverse incidents. Progressive employers on their part have gone to great lengths to implement the law, not just in form but also in spirit.

The Sexual Harassment Act requires the employer to constitute an ICC at every office location having a minimum of 10 employees. The law prescribes the details on how the members of the ICC need to be nominated by the employer based on their seniority, experience and familiarity with issues relating to sexual harassment.

The law allows the Presiding Officer and other members of the ICC to hold office for up to 3 years. Assuming most employers set up their ICC in or after December 2013, as per the Sexual Harassment Act, its time they initiate the process of replacing the members of their ICC.

Accordingly, in the next couple of months, employers should identify and start training the new members. The training should be in terms of the provisions of law, requirements of the employer’s anti-harassment policy and charter, investigation process and timelines, manner of collecting and documenting evidence, ways of examining the parties (including witnesses), drafting the report and its conclusion, types of penalties that may be levied, etc. Employers should also focus on helping their new members develop soft skills in terms of dealing with the complainant and the respondent. To the extent the existing ICC has undergone a training programme, a similar initiative should also be extended to the new members. Subject to complying with confidentiality obligations, the employer may also request the existing ICC to include the new members as ‘observers’ in some of the ongoing matters being investigated by the ICC, as part of their training.

But this change is unlikely to be an easy process. While some employers and their ICCs are still getting familiar with the requirements of the Sexual Harassment Act, its already time to change the members. In a way, the process followed by employers in December 2013 will need to be repeated.

Some of the questions that are likely to arise while implementing the change are:

1. Does the employer need to change the entire ICC at one go or gradually, especially to retain continuity?
2. Can the employer extend the term of an existing member of the ICC to another 3 years?
3. What happens if the employer is unable to identify an appropriate Presiding Officer of the ICC, given the importance of such a role?
4. Does the employer also need to change the external member on the ICC who may be appointed from a non-governmental organisation or association committed to the cause of women?
5. What happens to complaints that are being investigated by the existing ICC and likely to continue for some more time?

6. What if another complaint is received in relation to a matter that has been previously investigated and closed by the existing ICC?

7. Can there be two ICCs constituted in parallel - the current ICC to complete investigations relating to existing complaints while the other for any new complaints?

8. How will the new ICC prepare the annual report if they are not familiar with the previous complaints?

All answers may not be easily available at this stage. There may also be a need to consider some of these questions on a case-by-case basis given the sensitivities involved. At the end of the day, while taking any decision, employers must ensure that the intent and principles of the Sexual Harassment Act are adhered to and the interest of women remains secured at all times. Incidentally, the guidelines issued by the Supreme Court of India in 1997 in the case of Vishaka v. State of Rajasthan did not prescribe such a three year period and hence these questions did not arise previously.

The Bombay High Court has recently\(^\text{36}\) ruled that it would not interfere with an order of punishment passed by the ICC in relation to a sexual harassment complaint, unless the order is shockingly disproportionate.\(^\text{37}\) This judgment reaffirms the importance and powers of the ICC that is required to be formed under the Sexual Harassment Act. Given the sensitivities surrounding sexual harassment allegations, it is important that the ICC is trained to deal with such cases in a fair, proper and dispassionate manner and based on the principles of natural justice. It is also necessary for the ICC to ensure that it completes the investigation and issues its order within the time frame set under the law.

This judgment also clarifies the already enshrined principles of judicial restraint by the courts. The interference of the courts should be limited to ensuring that there are no procedural irregularities or violations of principles of natural justice. Once the ICC has adequately and appropriately addressed a complaint of sexual harassment, it is not open to the courts to look into the merits of the matter.

This time though, employers are not alone - the government, on its part, faces similar issues and questions as mentioned above. Members of the Local Complaints Committee set up by the District Officers in each district, are also subjected to the same timeline of 3 years.

India’s Law on Prevention of Sexual Harassment at Workplace
India’s Law on Prevention of Sexual Harassment at Workplace

About the book

A stitch in time saves nine. And especially if it is in relation to measures for prevention of sexual harassment at the workplace.

Studies reveal that almost 3 out of every 5 (working) women have faced some form of sexual harassment in their lives! Isn't that alarming? Although the law preventing sexual harassment at workplace has been in force for over 3 years, there still remains a lack of clarity on the objective of the statute, Acts that constitute sexual harassment, obligations of the employer, remedies available to the victims, process for investigation, etc. Many are also not fully aware of the criminal consequences of sexual harassment.

Any tool would be useless if the person operating is unaware of the manner in which it to be used. The objective of this publication is to serve as a ready reckoner to the stakeholders. We have also attempted to provide an insight into the relevant provisions of the Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013 and other relevant laws in India dealing with this topic.

The publication provides a general background on what constitutes sexual harassment and when and where to draw the line. It should enable female employees to understand their rights and the remedies available to them if faced with an act of sexual harassment. We have also outlined the employer's obligations and the steps to be adopted by the employer in redressing grievances pertaining to sexual harassment.

We hope you find this publication relevant and informative.

Sexual Harassment at Workplace: Indian Government Introduces Platform for Female Employees to File Complaints

The Ministry of Women and Child Development has launched “SHe-Box”, an online platform for reporting complaints of sexual harassment arising at the workplace. The SHe-Box facility can be used by both government and private sector employees. Complaints received on SHe-Box shall be directed by the government to the employer’s ICC or LCC. Progress of the investigation can be monitored by both the complainant and the Ministry of Women and Child Development.

I. What’s She-Box?

The Indian Ministry of Women and Child Development (“WCD”) had launched an online complaint platform named “SHe-Box”, which stands for “Sexual Harassment Electronic Box”. SHe-Box has been introduced to allow female employees or visitors a platform to raise complaints of sexual harassment at the workplace. This facility has also been extended to private sector employees.

‘SHe-box’, which can be accessed at www.shebox.nic.in, seeks to ensure effective implementation of India’s Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013 (“Anti-Harassment Law”). It aims at providing speedy redressal of sexual harassment complaints. In the event that a formal complaint is lodged with SHe-Box, based on an assessment of the complaint, the WCD will direct such complaint to the employer’s Internal Complaints Committee (“ICC”) or the Local Complaints Committee set up by the government at each district (“LCC”), as the case may be. The WCD also proposes to actively monitor the progress of inquiry conducted by the ICC / LCC and keep the complainant updated. SHe-Box also proposes to work as a repository providing information related to dealing with workplace sexual harassment complaints. The users are free to access the resources available on SHe-Box for creating awareness.

The WCD promises to ensure that the identity of the aggrieved women / complainant is kept confidential.

II. Grievance Redressal Under The Anti-Harassment Law

Please refer to our research paper titled ‘India’s law on Prevention of Sexual Harassment at Workplace’ for information on India’s Anti-Harassment Law. A brief snapshot is as follows:

- The Anti-Harassment Law was enacted in December 2013, almost 16 years after the guidelines issued by the Supreme Court of India in the case of Vishakha.

As per the Anti-Harassment Law, every employer employing at least 10 employees is required to set up an ICC at each office or branch to investigate and redress sexual harassment grievances.

The government is also required to set up a LCC in every district to deal with complaints of sexual harassment arising from the unorganized sector or from establishments where the ICC has not been constituted (on account of the establishment having less than 10 employees) or if the complaint is against the employer.

The law imposes a penalty of upto Rs. 50,000 (approx. USD 775) on employers who do not implement the provisions of the Anti-Harassment Law including failure to constitute an ICC.

III. Analysis

The introduction of SHe-Box is a positive step of the Indian government in its continuing efforts to provide a safe and fair working environment for women. With this initiative, female employees now have another channel to raise workplace sexual harassment complaints.

Inspite of the enactment of the Anti-Harassment Law in 2013, the WCD has been receiving sexual harassment complaints. This indicates that either there are employers that may not have a fully functional ICC or necessary awareness has not been created at the workplace. It could even be possible that female employees do not have enough confidence in their employer's internal complaint mechanism or that the investigation has been delayed.

The government will however need to quickly implement the requisite infrastructure and resources to manage this initiative to achieve the desired objectives. While SHe-Box has currently been designed to cater to the interests of female employees, enabling them to raise complaints of sexual harassment on a quick time basis without fear of retaliation, the government should also use this platform by providing necessary tools to help employers comply with the Anti-Harassment Law. By way of examples, SHe-Box could serve as a point of reference for employers or their ICC should they have any questions relating to the process to be followed upon receiving a complaint or how the report should be worded. It could also serve as a repository of experienced personnel who could serve as the external member on the employer's ICC at different locations.

According to the National Crime Records Bureau, between 2014 and 2015 (that is, after implementation of the Anti-Harassment Law by the Indian government), reporting of sexual harassment complaints has increased significantly. In terms of statistics, 65.2% of women have reported that their employers do not follow the procedure laid out under the Anti-Sexual Harassment Act and 46.7% of the participant companies have admitted that their ICCs are not aware of the legal provisions pertaining to sexual harassment. The recent worldwide social media campaign #MeToo which was started in response to the Harvey Weinstein scandal, depicted the magnitude of sexual harassment issues worldwide. The movement gave many Indian women the space and encouragement to come out with their own experiences of sexual harassment.

Some women also penned down horrifying instances from their childhood through social media, while some shed light on their daily struggles including incidents of sexual harassment at their workplaces.

In the last couple of years, sexual harassment issues have been widely covered in the Indian media. Given the litigational and reputational risks associated with non-compliance of the Sexual Harassment Law, it is high time that employers take affirmative steps in implementing zero-tolerance policies towards sexual harassment at their workplaces and ensure that the complaint is investigated swiftly, comprehensively and confidentially.
Prevention of Sexual Harassment at Workplace: Lessons from Case Laws

Sexual harassment at workplace remains a highly sensitive issue despite the POSH Act of 2013 establishing clear guidelines. A look at the judicial interpretation being adopted by courts in cases related to sexual harassment at the workplace.

By Vikram Shroff | Preetha S

India’s law on prevention of sexual harassment of women at workplace was enacted in 2013, much before the #MeToo movement. This law was widely applauded by the employee community as the need of the hour and now that it is nearing its fifth anniversary, the courts in India have started interpreting the provisions of the law keeping in mind the broader objectives that it seeks to achieve.

Being the first of its kind, the enactment of the Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013 (POSH Act) led to an increased awareness on the do’s and don’ts in terms of workplace conduct. The media also played a critical role in spreading awareness besides bringing into limelight several startling incidents of sexual harassment at the workplace. However, despite the awareness and the measures being taken by the government to ensure effective implementation of the law, sexual harassment at workplace remains a highly sensitive issue. From running a reputational risk to huge legal troubles, the road is not easy for employers who are slapped with sexual harassment cases.

This article seeks to provide in-house counsels and HR practitioners due perspective on the judicial interpretation being adopted by the courts in such matters.

What is ‘sexual harassment’?
As per the High Court of Delhi, in order that a “physical contact” constitutes ‘sexual harassment’, it should have the color of an ‘unwelcome sexually determined behavior’. A mere accidental physical contact, even though unwelcomed, would not amount to sexual harassment. In a case before the High Court of Kerala, it was observed that although the language used by an officer in his report regarding an event organized by a junior female colleague was inappropriate, the same did not amount to ‘sexual harassment’. This was because there was no allegation of a promise, threat or creation of an offensive or hostile work environment for the female employee.

What constitutes ‘workplace’?
The definition of ‘workplace’ covers within its scope, places visited by employees during employment, or reasons arising out of employment including transportation provided by the employer for commuting to and from the place of employment.

In a case where a female employee had alleged sexual harassment by a colleague during an outstation visit to Hyderabad, the High Court of Delhi upheld the employer’s decision to terminate the employment of the accused based on the recommendations of the Internal Committee (IC).

The High Court of Bombay pointed out that the definition of ‘workplace’ under the POSH Act is inclusive and deliberately kept wide in order to ensure that any area where women may be subject to sexual harassment is not left unattended or unprovoked for. This illustrates the intention of the legislature to provide protection and prevention at all possible workplaces where either the aggrieved woman works or may visit in connection with her duty or the place where the respondent is at work.

How should the IC be constituted?
While examining various aspects in relation to the composition and constitution of the IC, courts have taken the following views:

Where the employer was unable to demonstrate that the members appointed from amongst the employees fulfilled the requirements under the POSH Act, the High Court of Bombay directed the employer to re-constitute the IC, conduct a fresh inquiry and submit its report afresh.

The Rajasthan High Court, in a case, held that an employer must nominate two members from amongst employees ‘preferably’ committed to the cause of women, or who have the experience in social work, or possess legal knowledge. The court opined that given the use of the term ‘preferably’, it cannot be construed that any person having no legal knowledge cannot be appointed as an IC member. Also, the mere fact that the Presiding Officer of an IC is lower in rank than the accused does not invalidate the IC constitution, because accepting such a contention would mean that the composition and constitution of the IC will always be dependent on the rank of the person against whom such complaint is to be examined.

The High Court of Delhi opined that the external member to the IC should be a person associated with a non-governmental organization (NGO) or an association committed to the cause of women or a person familiar with the issues relating to sexual harassment. In a specific case, the employer had appointed a labor lawyer as the external member on the IC and was unable to demonstrate that the external member was familiar with sexual harassment issues.

What powers does the IC possess?
As per the High Court of Delhi, the IC has the power to extend the time limit for filing a complaint by 3 months, i.e. up to a total of six months from the date when the incident took place by recording reasons in writing if it is satisfied that certain circumstances prevented the complainant from filing the complaint earlier.

The High Court of Delhi also confirmed the IC’s power to enforce the attendance of any person as per the provisions of the POSH Act. The same court clarified that the petitioner has the right to approach the IC for immediate protection and the IC is empowered to grant interim relief, if it deems fit.

The High Court of Bombay held that where an inquiry has been conducted by an IC after giving adequate opportunity to all the parties and the IC has come to a conclusion, then merely because two views are possible, the court is not expected to re-appreciate the evidence and come to a different conclusion than the one which has been arrived at by the IC.

How should the complaint be filed?
The High Court of Delhi held that a complaint cannot be rejected by the IC merely on the grounds that the complainant had delayed in filing the complaint. In this case, the allegations of the complainant were clearly supported by the statements of several other witnesses who corroborated that the accused had indulged in similar conduct with them as well.

The Rajasthan High Court held that an aggrieved woman can file a complaint with the IC without having to submit the complaint in person.

How should the inquiry proceedings be conducted?
The High Court of Delhi ruled that if the employer believes that an allegation of bias is true, then a new IC needs to be formed and the proceedings should start afresh.

With respect to adhering to the principles of natural justice, the High Court of Delhi pointed out that in the enquiry proceedings, strict rules of evidence are not required to be followed. The IC has the flexibility to adopt its own procedure in conformity with the principles of natural justice.

The High Court of Kerala, pointed out that the inquiry as per the POSH Act is supposed to be a full-fledged enquiry, similar to a disciplinary inquiry in cases of misconduct. The Rajasthan High Court observed that the POSH Act and the rules enable a three-member IC to conduct the inquiry so long as the Presiding Officer is present. Therefore, an inquiry report does not stand vitiated if not less than three members had conducted the inquiry. The High Court of Delhi reiterated that the findings of an IC should not be ignored on vague and general grounds.

Case laws enable employers and their ICs to deal with sexual harassment complaints keeping in mind the judicial interpretation of the law. From an HR perspective, it is critical for employers to set the right precedent for its employees so that the morale and work ethics at the workplace is not adversely affected. From an HR perspective, it is critical for employers to set the right precedent for its employees so that the morale and work ethics at the workplace is not adversely affected. Formulation of a comprehensive and efficacious mechanism preventing sexual harassment should be on the priority list for every CEO. As opined by the High Court of Bombay, employers need to genuinely be concerned with the safety of women at workplace rather than staging a farce of compliance under the POSH Act.

From an HR perspective, it is critical for employers to set the right precedent for its employees so that the morale and work ethics at the workplace is not adversely affected. The complaint can be sent to the IC through another person or by any other media, the main point being that it should be received by the IC.

Research @ NDA

Research is the DNA of NDA. In early 1980s, our firm emerged from an extensive, and then pioneering, research by Nishith M. Desai on the taxation of cross-border transactions. The research book written by him provided the foundation for our international tax practice. Since then, we have relied upon research to be the cornerstone of our practice development. Today, research is fully ingrained in the firm’s culture.

Our dedication to research has been instrumental in creating thought leadership in various areas of law and public policy. Through research, we develop intellectual capital and leverage it actively for both our clients and the development of our associates. We use research to discover new thinking, approaches, skills and reflections on jurisprudence, and ultimately deliver superior value to our clients. Over time, we have embedded a culture and built processes of learning through research that give us a robust edge in providing best quality advices and services to our clients, to our fraternity and to the community at large.

Every member of the firm is required to participate in research activities. The seeds of research are typically sown in hour-long continuing education sessions conducted every day as the first thing in the morning. Free interactions in these sessions help associates identify new legal, regulatory, technological and business trends that require intellectual investigation from the legal and tax perspectives. Then, one or few associates take up an emerging trend or issue under the guidance of seniors and put it through our “Anticipate-Prepare-Deliver” research model.

As the first step, they would conduct a capsule research, which involves a quick analysis of readily available secondary data. Often such basic research provides valuable insights and creates broader understanding of the issue for the involved associates, who in turn would disseminate it to other associates through tacit and explicit knowledge exchange processes. For us, knowledge sharing is as important an attribute as knowledge acquisition.

When the issue requires further investigation, we develop an extensive research paper. Often we collect our own primary data when we feel the issue demands going deep to the root or when we find gaps in secondary data. In some cases, we have even taken up multi-year research projects to investigate every aspect of the topic and build unparallel mastery. Our TMT practice, IP practice, Pharma & Healthcare/Med-Tech and Medical Device, practice and energy sector practice have emerged from such projects. Research in essence graduates to Knowledge, and finally to Intellectual Property.

Over the years, we have produced some outstanding research papers, articles, webinars and talks. Almost on daily basis, we analyze and offer our perspective on latest legal developments through our regular “Hotlines”, which go out to our clients and fraternity. These Hotlines provide immediate awareness and quick reference, and have been eagerly received. We also provide expanded commentary on issues through detailed articles for publication in newspapers and periodicals for dissemination to wider audience. Our Lab Reports dissect and analyze a published, distinctive legal transaction using multiple lenses and offer various perspectives, including some even overlooked by the executors of the transaction. We regularly write extensive research articles and disseminate them through our website. Our research has also contributed to public policy discourse, helped state and central governments in drafting statutes, and provided regulators with much needed comparative research for rule making. Our discourses on Taxation of eCommerce, Arbitration, and Direct Tax Code have been widely acknowledged.

Although we invest heavily in terms of time and expenses in our research activities, we are happy to provide unlimited access to our research to our clients and the community for greater good.

As we continue to grow through our research-based approach, we now have established an exclusive four-acre, state-of-the-art research center, just a 45-minute ferry ride from Mumbai but in the middle of verdant hills of reclusive Alibaug-Raigadh district. Imaginarium AliGunjan is a platform for creative thinking; an apolitical ecosystem that connects multi-disciplinary threads of ideas, innovation and imagination. Designed to inspire ‘blue sky’ thinking, research, exploration and synthesis, reflections and communication, it aims to bring in wholeness – that leads to answers to the biggest challenges of our time and beyond. It seeks to be a bridge that connects the futuristic advancements of diverse disciplines. It offers a space, both virtually and literally, for integration and synthesis of knowhow and innovation from various streams and serves as a dais to internationally renowned professionals to share their expertise and experience with our associates and select clients.
